

189 Funny Twitter Bios & Ideas

JANUARY 28, 2015 | BY: TREVOR NACE

Have you every thought of writing an autobiography? Something that would give people an impression about who you are from your own perspective? A glimpse into YOU.

What do Katy Perry, Shaq, and Sarah Silverman have in common? They all have incredibly funny Twitter bios that remind you why we love to watch them on TV and listen to their music. Their creative bio ideas are just an example of the multitude of options you have when writing your very own. Luckily for you, by the end of this article you will have everything you need for an awesome bio.

But hold on, it's just as easy at stringing a few words together to make a great Twitter bio that people will enjoy throughout the world. It takes more work than that, a bit of hard thinking, a bit of planning, creativity, a unique idea helps, and a lot of fun.

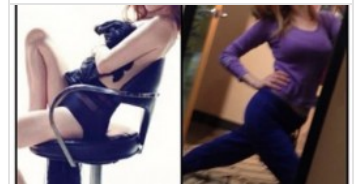

“One puts off the biography like you put off death. To write an autobiography is to etch the words on your own gravestone.” – Carlos Fuentes

Twitter Bio Ideas

Let's break down as precisely as we can what makes a great Twitter bio so you can recreate some of the genius ideas below and make your very own. Below I've outlined what I believe are key principles of creating your own unique and clever bio. With these tips you'll be on your way to bio fame.

1. The first thing to note is that you're limited to 160 characters and not a period more. This means you're forced to be concise and say what you have to say in limited space. From reading the bios below you will notice that they are typically 1 to 2 sentences. Make sure when you're thinking of ideas you can hash them out in 1 or 2 sentences or maybe 3 short ones.
2. Make it funny, period. If you read through the very best Twitter bios, you will notice that almost all of them are very funny. Even if you're not the most humorous person out there, at least try to be silly or get ideas from the examples below. You can also try to ask a funny friend if they can help you think of one that relates to you. Alternatively, watch some standup comedy to get those creative juices flowing.
3. Be positive about yourself. Even if you're not the most confident person or don't want to sound pretentious by telling everyone about how great you are, there is no need to get down on yourself. Make sure it's upbeat and positive but not too arrogant or people may get turned off.

4. Tell the truth about who you are and what you like to do. No one likes someone who lies and lives a different life on social media than they do in real life. Keep it accurate to who you are and people will appreciate that.

5. Determine what type of follower you want and adjust your bio accordingly. If you really want followers that would appreciate your hobby of mountain biking, then make sure you have something about it in your bio. That way, people can find you based on your interests.

6. Be human above all else. You can find Twitter bio generators out there, which are helpful to get great ideas, but aren't human enough to connect with people. It's important to make sure whatever you write displays who you are as a person and gives other people the chance to connect with you on a personal level.
